

In addition, this theory—that of the German sociologist Niklas Luhmann—is one of the most (if not the most) powerful contemporary general sociological theories (Luhmann, 1982, 1987, 1988). Therefore, in the rest of this section, rather than making an eclectic use of different social theories, I briefly present portions of Luhmann’s theory.

References

Niklas Luhmann. The Differentiation of Society. New York: Columbia University Press, 1982.

Niklas Luhmann. The evolutionary differentiation between society and interaction. In Jeffrey C. Alexander, Bernhard Giesen, Richard Muench, and Neil J. Smelser, editors, The Micro-Macro Link, pages 112–31. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1987.

Niklas Luhmann. Die Wirtschaft der Gesellschaft. Frankfurt am Main: Suhrkamp, 1988.